Appendix: Country-specific items

The questionnaire contains several elements that are country specific. This does not only relate to the queried regions but also to the GDP reference categories included in B07 and B08, the United Nations geoscheme's subregional group of each country used for questions C02 and D05, party lists used for E02 and E03, educational attainments queried in F03, religious denomination queried in F18, as well as property (in particular monetary savings) and household income (F25 and F26) which are both based on the national available income per capita.

Question B07–B08: GDP reference category

The following table lists the GDP per capita in (in US dollar PPP) as used in questions B07 and B08. Please see the Master Questionnaire and the respective Country Questionnaires for the detailed wording.

Country	GDP per capita (in USD, PPP)	Rounded numbers used in the questionnaire (in USD, PPP)

Questions E02–E03: Party lists

In each country, we queried the most relevant political parties. While E02 (vote choice in the last election) and E03 (vote intention) are equal in most countries, differences appear when new parties have been founded or old parties have been renamed, have merged, or dissolved since the last election and querying these for vote intention would not make sense anymore. Relevance is defined differently for each country. In most countries, we queried all parties currently represented in parliaments. In some cases, we omitted smaller parties. For all countries, we relied on local expertise to verify the final party lists.

Question F03: Educational attainment

Educational attainment was measured as the highest level of education achieved. The answer categories distinguished between seven educational levels based on the International Standard Classification of Education (ISCED 2011). ISCED categories 0 and 1 were combined to 1 “Less than lower secondary education (including no formal education, early childhood education, primary education)”. Furthermore, ISCED categories 6 and 7 have been combined to 6 “Higher tertiary education, MA level or higher”. In some countries, the category ISCED-4 (“Post-secondary non-tertiary education”) does not exist. In these countries, respondents could only choose between five education categories. The following table shows the country-specific education levels that were used in the questionnaires. They are based on the official ISCED 2011 equivalence tables of UNESCO<sup>3</sup>. The table lists the descriptions of the education level in the main national language as well as in English.

	1 “Less than lower secondary education (including no formal education, early childhood education, primary education)”	2 “Lower secondary education”	3 “Upper Secondary education”	4 “Post-secondary non-tertiary education”	5 “Lower tertiary education, BA level (including short-cycle tertiary education)”	6 “Higher tertiary education, MA level or higher”

Questions F25–F26: Mean national income

Property (in particular monetary savings) and household income (F25 and F26) are both based on the national available income per capita to make them relatively comparable across countries. For F25, we query whether the respondent (or someone living in his household) has 50% of the yearly mean national income per capita or more as savings. In F26, we differentiate between the following categories:

- (1) Less than [40% of mean national income]
- (2) [40%-60% of mean national income]
- (3) [60%-80% of mean national income]
- (4) [80%-100% of mean national income]
- (5) [100%-150% of mean national income]
- (6) [150%-200% of mean national income]
- (7) [200%-250% of mean national income]
- (8) [250%-350% of mean national income]
- (9) More than [350% of the mean national income]

The below table outlines the monthly mean income per capita for each country as well as the rounded sum of 50% of the yearly income and the rounded figures for each category of F26.
