

Dissertation zur Vorlage am Fachbereich Politik- und Sozialwissenschaften an der Freien Universität Berlin

Agrarian Transformation in Egypt:
Conflict Dynamics and the Politics of Power from a Micro Perspective

Gutachter:

PD Dr. Thomas Zitelmann, Freie Universität

Prof. Ray Bush, Leeds University

Datum der Disputation: 15. Februar 2005

von Caroline Laetitia Tingay

Pasteurstr. 8, 10407 Berlin

This work is dedicated to my husband, Dominik and to our children, Lawrence and Cecilia

Table of Contents

Introduction	1
Section I: Personal Power Agendas & the Dynamics of Violence	11
1. The Politics of Agrarian Reform in Contemporary Egypt	12
1.1 Introduction	12
1.2 The ‘Structural Adjustment of Liberties’	14
1.3 Law 96 and the Economic Liberalisation Process	16
1.4 Nasser’s Social Contract with the Fellahin	19
1.5 The Build Up to October 1997	22
1.6 Conclusion	26
2. Law 96 of 1992: The Government’s ‘Serious Commitment to Implementation’	29
2.1 Introduction	29
2.2 Law 96’s Full Implementation & the Increasing Politicisation of Land	31
2.3 The ‘Reconciliation Committees’	36
2.4 ‘Conquering the Desert’	40
2.5 The Slide into Poverty	43
2.6 Conclusion	47
3. A Reading of the Incidents of Violence in Daqahliya Governorate	49
3.1 Introduction	49
3.2 Methodological Challenges	53
3.3 Sparks of Resistance	55
3.4 Contesting the Contesters: The Eviction of Tenant Farmers	56
3.5 Conflicts over Housing Attached to Agricultural Land	63

3.6 The Logic of Fire Fighters: The State Security ‘Does its Job’	65
3.7 The Escalation of Individual Acts of Violence	68
3.8 The Reconstruction of Fragmentary Evidence	69
3.9 Conclusion	74
Section II: Narratives of Contention & Avoidance: The Case Study of El Bîr	76
4. The Micro Cosmos of El Bîr	77
4.1 Introduction	77
4.2 An Initial Glimpse of Village Life	79
4.3 The Right to Work: Respect & Self-Esteem	88
4.4 Land & Property in El Bîr	92
4.5 Conclusion	102
5. The Ordinary versus the Extraordinary	104
5.1 Introduction	104
5.2 Notions of Reconciliation & Conflict in Day-to-Day Life	105
5.3 An Extraordinary Situation: The ‘Non-Negotiability’ of Law 96	117
5.4 ‘We Are All One’	123
5.5 Positive Comparisons	125
5.6 Conclusion	131
6. The Tenancy Web & the Vocabulary of Dissent	133
6.1 Introduction	133
6.2 Tit for Tat: ‘You Were the Boss & Now I am the Boss’	134
6.3 The Big Shots: Friend or Foe?	145
6.4 The Vocabulary of Dissent	149
6.5 ‘We Are the Sons of Pharaohs’	155

6.6 Conclusion	161
7. Conclusions: Private Violence & the Fiction of Rural Revolt	164
Appendices	169
Bibliography	189
Glossary	198
Zusammenfassung (Summary in German)	204